HIST 232—American Nation: 1877-Present

Kelly Obernuefemann

“The greatest movement for social justice our country has ever known is the civil rights movement and it was totally rooted in a love ethic.” --bell hooks

NOTE: “The article focuses on the development of a new American progressive movement. Despite the establishment of various movements, the group is still seeking for a loyal and liberal organization. In desperation, a group of these harassed intellectual individuals have tossed aside their remaining robes of prophecy and become Americans for Democratic Action.”
